ANNUAL BANQUET IS OCCASION OF GOOD FELLOWSHIP AND JOY

CHARLEROI BUSINESS MEN AND THEIR LADIES ATTEND FUNCTION

Civic and Sociological Questions Treated by Able Speakers in Their Addresses--John Marron and E. E. Bach Make Addresses

VISITORS FROM OTHER TRADE BODIES PRESENT

By the admission of the ladies—God bless 'em—a new wrinkle was introduced at the fourth annual banquet of the Charleroi Business Men's Association, which was held last evening at Turner Hall. Because of this innovation business—the old sordid idea of the exploitation of the public and the vulgar accumulation of dollars and cents—was conspicuous by its absence in the exercises, and the new, real business of making life and conditions better for men, women and children featured the addresses. Two splendid talks on civics, one on the vacational training of children in our public schools, by Prof. E. E. Bach, a sociological expert, and one on the moral influence of business by John Marron, the Pittsburg attorney whose fight on municipal graft and corruption has made him a national figure, were in keeping with the new thought and progress of the day.

In the handsomely appointed auditorium of Turner Hall the banquet tables were laid. In the neighborhood of 140 members, with their wives, sweethearts and representatives from Monessen, Belle Vernon, Ellsworth and other neighboring towns were present. After an invocation by Rev. E. N. Duty, pastor of Christ Lutheran church, the signal was given for the company to be seated and a most delectable menu was admirably served by Caterer Kohle, steward of the Charleroi Turn Verein, who exerted his best efforts for the occasion. Following is the menu:

Roast Chicken Cold Roast Veal
Pickled Tongue Cold Roast Pork
Mashed Potatoes
Potato Salad
Lobster Mayonnaise Sweitzer Cheese
Tomatoes Olives Celery
Pineapples Cake Ice Cream
Coffee

At the conclusion—not cigars for on account of the ladies the "smokes" were omitted—Dr. J. W. Hunter, chairman of the committee of arrangements, welcomed the ladies and guests, and introduced the toastmaster of the evening, Harry J. Booth. Dr. Hunter spoke of the influence of woman on our social life, and said that we do not live for business alone, and that the higher life should dominate our relations with each other. As an illustration of this he noted the efforts of John B. Schafer, president of the Business Men's Association, in the playgrounds and curb market movements have been of inestimable benefit to Charleroi.

Mr. Booth, on assuming the role of toastmaster, paid a glowing tribute to woman, giving the Scriptural and Hindoo versions of her creation. He proposed the celebrated toast of Henry Waterson to the fair sex, to which the men responded, after which he introduced the first speaker of the evening. Prof E. E. Bach of Ellsworth who responded to the toast, "Vocational Training and Its Adaptability to Our Schools."

Vocational School Work.—

Prof. Bach is an expert in vocational school work, being employed as sociological superintendent by the Ellsworth Collieries company at Ellsworth and Cokeburg. He has introduced vocational work in the public schools at Ellsworth of which 80 per cent of its children are foreigners. This is one of the first experiments of the kind in a school of this nature and Prof. Bach's work is attracting statewide attention.

Fresh from the convention of the National Educational Association held recently at Philadelphia, Prof. Bach told in a most interesting and entertaining manner of the vocational work that is being done in the various schools of the country and innovations in education that are being introduced whereby the child is taught to do and comprehend things that will have a direct bearing in the practical duties of life. In his own work at Ellsworth, where as stated 80 per cent of the children are foreigners, and the whole community is devoted to mining, the public playground was introduced first with great success. Kindergarten work in charge of expert teachers is also in successful operation in the Ellsworth and Cokeburg schools, and domestic and kitchen science is taught the girls from the sixth grade up.

Teaching the Foreigner.

As Ellsworth is exclusively a mining community, and the boys will most likely follow in their father's occupations, they are taught first and to injured, elementary mining, mining laws and elementary business forms, such making out bills, receipts, drawing checks and endorsing them properly. Night schools are also maintained, in which the foreign and American girls are alternately instructed in domestic science. There are also night schools for adults, where the mothers—particularly the foreigners—are given instructions in household work. A mining night school for adults is also maintained where youths and men can study and equip themselves for high and responsible mining positions. These are taught by experts, some of whom are always at the collieries from some of the big colleges getting practical mining experience. Night schools in English for the foreigner are also maintained.

Prof. Bach laid stress on this form of education for boys and girls as well as adults. He said it was a mistake to judge the foreigner as illiterate. In all his experience at Ellsworth he said he only found one illiterate foreign miner who could not read and write in his own language. What they need is to be taught English and the nature of our laws, he said, to make of them good citizens.

"Our school houses are loafing over half the time," he declared. "They should be lighted up and kept open every week day night in the year for recreations and social centers for the people."

With appropriate introductions on the part of the toastmaster, R. H. Rush, cashier of the First National Bank of Charleroi gave a reading, "The Shooting of Dan McGrew," and E. E. Seers, president of the Belle Vernon Civic League and C. R. New, a representative of the Monessen Board of Trade made brief talks, in which they commended the cordial relations that existed between the pople of Charleroi and their respective towns.

In introducing John Marron, Esq., of Pittsburg, Toastmaster Booth referred to an address he made here a year ago under the auspices of the Knights of Columbus, which had most warmly commended Mr. Marron to the hearts of all Charleroi people who stand for civic righteousness. Mr. Marron, who is no stranger in Charleroi, was most warmly applauded on arising to his feet.

Withhold Woman's Rights.

"Don't forget," were the first words he said, addressing the ladies, "that your husbands hold your vote in their pockets an won't give it to you." This indicated how the speaker stood on woman suffrage, and he was tumultuously applauded.

Straight out from the shoulder, in responding to the toast, "The Moral Civic Influence of the Business Men's Association," Mr. Marion hit the sins and omissions of the business, social aind industrial world. The error of society he said, has been in devoting our energies in how to make business instead of how to make men. He scored the business ethics which have resulted in the frenzied finance of the past 20 years, the contempt and systematic violation of law by big business interests and those who apparently ranked high in social and business life. The legal profession—his own—was scored for aiding and abetting in violating the law, as well as the newspapers for tolerating and covering up conditions; but back of all this dishonesty and corruption, the speaker said, are we, ourselves, each and every one of us. We stood by and consented.

"Business," thes peaker s aid, "has been carried on not only openly in defiance of the law, but in defiance of the public, he spoke of the horror of readers of history over the crimes of Lucretia Borgia, the prisoner, but said little was thought of modern firms deliberately engaging in the business of poisoning people by wholesale until they were stopped by the government. Dr. Wiley's good work in exposing this iniquity was eulogized, but when the latter was thrown out because the public prisoners had too much power, and the people did not protest, their silence, Mr. Marron said, was the greatest evidence of the ingratitude of republics.

Cloven Foot in Patents.

We shudder at the old primal crimes of brutality, but the modern method eclipses them all. Burglary by experts is no longer profitable. Such can turn their talents to incorporating blue sky stock and make infinitely more money. We must drive inquity out of business, the piracy and buccaneering methods that are now practiced. We can scarcely lay our hands on anything today that does not smell. The cleven foot is now hid in the patent leather shoe. What we need is common every day honesty that will withstand temptation, respect for law and hatred of violators, who should not be tolerated. This is the mission of the business men's association, the speaker said, as well as of each individual.

With a few brief remarks from President John B. Schafer, who excused himself from making any extended remarks, the program ended. The reception committee was composed of Alex B. Gray, C. R. Newcomer, Ed. W. Hastings, O Lance Riggs, Albert G. Stech and Carl M. Wetz. Wheeler's orchestra furnished the music.

Lenten Service.

Lenten services will be held tonight at 8 o'clock at St. Mary's Episcopal church, when an address will be made.

RAILROAD HUNTING BUSINESS

Inaugurates Campaign to Secure Passenger Trade

CHANGES IN OFFICIALS

Determined to increase the gross passenger business Pennsylvania rail oad passenger agents are busy instructing the various ticket agents as to methods to be pursued for securing business. A concerted effort will be made by the ticket agents and the passenger men generally under a systematic plan to get all the trade that is to be had in the territory the road covers. And the railroad will not be a bit averse to securing passenger business that comes from what would not really be its territory.

The campaign in this direction has been started through recent changes that were made in the passenger offices at Pittsburg and other points. The first of March O. T. Boyd, then district passenger agent of the Pittsburg district was transferred to New York city, being given there the position of district passenger agent. At the time of his departure E. Youngman, the division ticket agent had added to his duties those of district passenger agent.

Traveling passenger agents are now out seeing the ticket agents, going over their reports and helping them in their work and making suggestions as to methods of getting new business. In all places they urge particular attention to this part of the work.

SEALER BILL IS ENTERED

Prepared For Regulation of Weights and Measures

IS A GOOD MEASURE

The bill drafted by City Sealer Murray A. Livingston of Pittsburg and County Sealer O. Evans Mikesell of Washington for the government of weights and measures was introduced in the House at Harrisburg Thursday night by Representative Thomas P. Geary of Allegheny county.

The measure is the most complete ever introduced in the Legislature and would fix a state standard of weights for over 100 commodities. The title of the "state sealer" would be changed to "commissioner of weights and measures." He would receive an annual salary of $4,000 and serve for a term of four years.

The bill would make it mandatory for counties and cities to appoint inspectors of weights and measures with a minmum salary of $1,000 annually.

HAS CONSIGNMENT OF NEW NICKLES

A consignment of $100 worth of the new five cent piece just issued by the treasury department at Washington has been received by the First National bank and the "nickles" are being distributed. The new piece of money is of unusual design. On one side is a buffalo and the words "United States of America," "E Pluribus Unum" and "Five Cents." On the opposite side is an Indian head, with the word "Liberty" and the date near the rim.

Local Military Organization Attended Inauguration

ON SIGHTSEEING TRIPS

Members of Brigade Visited at Mt. Vernon and Other Points in Washington

Travel-stained but not weary, members of the Charleroi Brigade arrived home this morning at 10:14 o'clock from Washington, D. C., where they attended the inauguration this week of President Woodrow Wilson. The brigade occupied a conspicuous place in the parade that was one of the biggest features of the inauguration. Their position was in the Sixth Brigade of the Fourth Grand Division, not far from the center. Upon their arrival home the brigade had a picture taken of the company.

The brigade arrived in Washington Monday and viewed the suffragette parade. According to members of the organization this was one of the most interesting features they viewed during the whole week. General Rosalie Jones was tendered somewhat of an ovation, although according to the Charleroi soldiers, as often as not Gen. Jones and her troop of hikers were grossly insulted and hooted at. She only smiled back and took whatever jokes were sent naturally. One of the boys said: "She made a hit with us." Some pictures of her and her army wer taken.

Tuesday of course was the parade day, and the brigade was in line of march from 1:50 o'clock until 7:30. In the evening the fireworks display at the White House drew all attention.

Wednesday was Mt. Vernon day. Then the company went to see Washington's birthplace, spending the entire day there. The beautiful old home, with its colonial furniture and the famous fireplace together with the surroundings of the old mansion proved intensely interesting sights.

Thursday the members of the brigade went sight-seeing in the national capital. Some went to the Washington monument and points in the environs of Washington and others visited the Smithonsion institution, and the capitol buildings. Among the places of interest visited was the printing department where paper money is printed. A new issue of Philippine currency was being prepared and the Charleroi boys viewed the first work of printing it.

The brigade left Washington Thursday evening at 7:50, arriving in Pittsburg at 6:33 o'clock. In Washington the weather was splendid all the time, with balmy breezes and spring-like warmth obviating the need even of wearing overcoats. The company from Charleroi included 25 members.

PUBLIC SENTIMENT.

In pleading for an awakened conscience to create such a public sentiment that violations of the law in high places will be no longer tolerated, John Marron in his address before the Business Men's Association last evening struck the keynote of civic virtue. It is public sentiment that dominates society throughout the civilized world and the people get exactly what they stand for. They alone are responsible for all the great evils in the world. They must either protest or consent.

Along with all the graft, corruption and the greed of gain in high places, which went to the extremes to the extent of jeopardizing life and health, was a general hope and expectation that this might permeate to all classes of society. The citizen in the lower walks of life sought to exploit his less fortunate neighbors just as he had been exploited himself. The gambling instinct was in the blood of the masses and each and every one sought to share in some way in the great game of getting something for nothing.

That is the reason why such lawlessness was tolerated. All of us were tainted. We either openly or secretly participated or like Paul at the stoning of Stephen, stood by and consented. An awakening conscience, however, is dispelling this iniquity, and the better instincts of the people are prevailing. It is up to the individual to create a healthy public sentiment and great progress is being made along this line.

PICKED UP IN PASSING

"There is no better test of citizenship than the quarantine regulations prescribed by the health laws of the state," said a prominent Charleroi physician, who is active in his efforts to prevent the spread of contagious and infections diseases. "We lay stress on the various reactions that follow certain medical treatments, and why should we not consider the quarantine reaction? As one eminent medical authority puts it, the quarantine reaction is diagnostic of the quality of one's citizenship.

"A positive quarantine reaction denotes good citizenship; a negative bad, or only poor citizenship and a doubtful reaction a gray quality of citizenship, of the 'didn't mean to do wrong' variety.

"It is in the willingness or reluctance to have one's personal freedom curtailed for the benefit of the community that this specific reaction lies. Many people regard the health department as their enemy, rather than friend. They are angry enough if their own children contract measles, scarlet fever or any other disease through the carelessness of their neighbors, yet they will evade the regulations of the quarantine themselves. These people would not willfully murder a neighbor's child or give it poisoned fruit or candy, but they deliberately help in thes pread of contagion that may result in suffering or death.

"Most people are unwilling to consider oneself 'unclean,' and for that reason evade the quarantine regulations when it applies to them personally. The positive quarantine reaction is the good citizen who looks for the welfare of his neighbors as well as himself, and obeys the quarantine regulations scrupuously. If we had more of these we would not have so many cases of contageous and infectious diseases as at present prevails.

"Of course there are those who are ignorant, but those who know better and are still careless and indifferent are so numerous as to make one wonder at the lack of good citizenship displayed."

Not knowing the name of the man she wanted to find or even the number of his office, a woman opened the door of a room where a group of men were engaged in conference. They gazed at her in blank astonishment, according to a Fallowfield avenue woman who tells the story.

"What may I do for you," one politely inquired." She answered:

"I'm lookin' vor ein man. I don' know what hiss name iss, und I don' know vere iss he, but who iss dis?"

AMONG THE THEATRES

THE COYLE—CHARLEROI

With the great historical drama in four parts, "The Knights of Rhodes," the Coyle Theatre opened up another week of motion picture presentations most auspiciously. This great film which was one of the best productions of the Ambrosia company of Turin, Italy, gave a comprehensive exposition of the Moslem invasion that threatened at one time to overwhelm Europe. It was when Soliman, Sultan or Turkey in 1522 decided to capture the Island of Rhodes, which was valiantly defended by some of the highest nobles of Europe, that the onward rush of Mosiemism was checked A thrilling romance was intrewoven in the historical text, which made the drama most intensely interesting. All the other films were up to the usual high standing of the Coyle's repertoire and a three reel Bison. "On the Frontier," was a sensational picture of how the early settlers and the small border army struggled for existence. For next Monday the Coyle presents "Saved in Mid-Air," a dramatic portrayal of love and jealousy in three reels. This is a story of intrigue where some daring schemes are worked to get important papers from the possession of a young man, who is rescued by a brave girl from a perilious position on a rope stretched at a dizzy height. There is a good week end bill in the repertoire.

THE PALACE—CHARLEROI

Amusing in the extreme was the comedy skit, "Breaking Into Vaudeville" presented by the Empire Trio at the Palace Theatre Thursday night. This trio is the headliner in the Palace vaudeville the latter part of this week. It is only necessary to state that the trio played at the Grand Theatre in Pittsburg a short time ago, to give evidence that they are good. Their playlet had as its plot what the title would indicate. One was made up straight, another as a negro and another as an Irishman. The comicalities incidental to the presumed experiences of ambitious stage-struck folks put the audience in an uproar. The Davenport Sisters had a sketch of merit. This sister team, composed of two beautiful young women, that by the way are as pretty off the stage as they are on and as vivacious, entertained with songs, dances and a delicious comedy. Their act won for them deserved plaudits. E. H. Jerome is the "single." His "stunt" is of an acrobatic comedy nature. There is somewhat of a departure from the ordinary in Jerome's act, which makes it more appreciable. There were the usual photoplay productions shown that proved the usual delightful feature. The vaudeville runs three days the latter part of each week and pictures every night.

THE STAR—CHARLEROI

If any person doubts the claim of the Star Theatre that it is good place to go for a good show every day all they have to do is to glance at the repertoire of the week, which was usually strong in features. Monday started off with a two reel Kay Bee, "The Paymaster's Son,' one of the western dramas that is so popular with those who in spite of mediocre environments still have a tinge of adventure in their blood. "Lost Memory" in three reels was one of the big features of the week and this was greatly appreciated by the Star patrons. "Calamaty Ann's Inheritance," "Evidence of the Film," and "A Night of Terror" were some of the other pictures that were usually attractive. "A Blue Grass Romance," a Broncho Bill picture was one of the week end attractons with an usually good bill for Saturday. Manager Cowan has an exceptionally fine service now, which improves with each week. He has some strong features booked for next week.

A special meeting of the stockholders of the Monongahela Valley Building and Loan Association will be held at their offices 413 Fallowfield avenue, Charleroi, Pa., Tuesday, March 11, 1913 at 8 o'clock p. m. for the purpose of taking action on amendments to the by-laws and filling vacancies in offices thus created.

ANNUAL BANQUET IS OCCASION OF GOOD FELLOWSHIP AND JOY

CHARLEROI BUSINESS MEN AND THEIR LADIES ATTEND FUNCTION

Civic and Sociological Questions Treated by Able Speakers in Their Addresses--John Marron and E. E. Bach Make Addresses

VISITORS FROM OTHER TRADE BODIES PRESENT

By the admission of the ladies—God bless 'em—a new wrinkle was introduced at the fourth annual banquet of the Charleroi Business Men's Association, which was held last evening at Turner Hall. Because of this innovation business—the old sordid idea of the exploitation of the public and the vulgar accumulation of dollars and cents—was conspicuous by its absence in the exercises, and the new, real business of making life and conditions better for men, women and children featured the addresses. Two splendid talks on civics, one on the vacational training of children in our public schools, by Prof. E. E. Bach, a sociological expert, and one on the moral influence of business by John Marron, the Pittsburg attorney whose fight on municipal graft and corruption has made him a national figure, were in keeping with the new thought and progress of the day.

In the handsomely appointed auditorium of Turner Hall the banquet tables were laid. In the neighborhood of 140 members, with their wives, sweethearts and representatives from Monessen, Belle Vernon, Ellsworth and other neighboring towns were present. After an invocation by Rev. E. N. Duty, pastor of Christ Lutheran church, the signal was given for the company to be seated and a most delectable menu was admirably served by Caterer Kohle, steward of the Charleroi Turn Verein, who exerted his best efforts for the occasion. Following is the menu:

Roast Chicken Cold Roast Veal
Pickled Tongue Cold Roast Pork
Mashed Potatoes
Potato Salad
Lobster Mayonnaise Switzer Cheese
Tomatoes Olives Celery
Pineapples Cake Ice Cream
Coffee

At the conclusion—not cigars for on account of the ladies the "smokes" were omitted—Dr. J. W. Hunter, chairman of the committee of arrangements, welcomed the ladies and guests, and introduced the toastmaster of the evening, Harry J. Booth. Dr. Hunter spoke of the influence of woman on our social life, and said that we do not live for business alone, and that the higher life should dominate our relations with each other. As an illustration of this he noted the efforts of John B. Schafer, president of the Business Men's Association, in the playgrounds and curb market movements have been of inestimable benefit to Charleroi.

Mr. Booth, on assuming the role of toastmaster, paid a glowing tribute to woman, giving the Scriptural and Hindoo versions of her creation. He proposed the celebrated toast of Henry Waterson to the fair sex, to which the men responded, after which he introduced the first speaker of the evening. Prof E. E. Bach of Ellsworth who responded to the toast, "Vocational Training and Its Adaptability to Our Schools.

Vocational School Work.—

Prof. Bach is an expert in vocational school work, being employed as sociological superintendent by the Ellsworth Collieries company at Ellsworth and Cokeburg. He has introduced vocational work in the public schools at Ellsworth of which 80 per cent of its children are foreigners. This is one of the first experiments of the kind in a school of this nature and Prof. Bach's work is attracting statewide attention.

Fresh from the convention of the National Educational Association held recently at Philadelphia, Prof. Bach told in a most interesting and entertaining manner of the vocational work that is being done in the various schools of the country and innovations in education that are being introduced whereby the child is taught to do and comprehend things that will have a direct bearing in the practical duties of life. In his own work at Ellsworth, where as stated 80 per cent of the children are foreigners, and the whole community is devoted to mining, the public playground was introduced first with great success. Kindergarten work in charge of expert teachers is also in successful operation in the Ellsworth and Cokeburg schools, and domestic and kitchen science is taught the girls from the sixth grade up.

Teaching the Foreigner.

As Ellsworth is exclusively a mining community, and the boys will most likely follow in their father's occupations, they are taught first and to injured, elementary mining, mining laws and elementary business forms, such making out bills, receipts, drawing checks and endorsing them properly. Night schools are also maintained, in which the foreign and American girls are alternately instructed in domestic science. There are also night schools for adults, where the mothers particularly the foreigners—are given instructions in household work. A mining night school for adults is also maintained where youths and men can study and equip themselves for high and responsible mining positions. These are taught by experts, some of whom are always at the collieries from some of the big colleges getting practical mining experience. Night schools in English for the foreigner are also maintained.

Prof. Bach laid stress on this form of education for boys and girls as well as adults. He said it was a mistake to judge the foreigner as illiterate. In all his experience at Ellsworth he said he only found one illiterate foreign miner who could not read and write in his own language. What they need is to be taught English and the nature of our laws, he said, to make of them good citizens.

"Our school houses are loafing over half the time," he declared. "They should be lighted up and kept open every week day night in the year for recreations and social centers for the people."

With appropriate introductions on the part of the toastmaster, R. H. Rush, cashier of the First National Bank of Charleroi gave a reading, "The Shooting of Dan McGrew," and E. E. Seers, president of the Belle Vernon Civic League and C. R. New, a representative of the Monessen Board of Trade made brief talks, in which they commended the cordial people of Charleroi and their respective towns.

In introducing John Marron, Esq., of Pittsburg, Toastmaster Booth referred to an address he made here a year ago under the auspices of the Knights of Columbus, which had most warmly commended Mr. Marron to the hearts of all Charleroi people who stand for civic righteousness. Mr. Marron, who is no stranger in Charleroi, was most warmly applauded on arising to his feet.

Withheld Woman's Rights.

"Don't forget," were the first words he said, addressing the ladies, "that your husbands hold your vote in their pockets an won't give it to you." This indicated how the speaker stood on woman suffrage and he was tumultuously applauded.

Straight out from the shoulder, in responding to the toast, "The Moral Civic Influence of the Business Men's Association," Mr. Marion hit the sins and omissions of the business, social and industrial world. The ego of society he said, has been in devoting our energies in how to make business instead of how to make men. He scored the business ethics which have resulted in the frenzied finance of the past 20 years, the contempt and systematic violation of law by big business interests and those who apparently ranked high in social and business life. The legal profession—his own—was scored for aiding and abetting in violating the law, as well as the newspapers for tolerating and covering up conditions; but back of all this dishonesty and corruption, the speaker said, are we, ourselves, each and every one of us. We stood by and consented.

"Business," thes peaker s aid, "has been carried on not only openly in defiance of the law, but in defiance of the public, he spoke of the horror of readers of history over the crimes of Lucretia Borgia, the prisoner, but said little was thought of modern firms deliberately engaging in the business of poisoning people by wholesale until they were stopped by the government. Dr. Wiley's good work in exposing this iniquity was eulogized, but when the latter was thrown out because the public prisoners had too much power, and the people did not protest. their silence, Mr. Marron said, was the greatest evidence of the ingratitude of republics.

Cloven Foot in Patents.

We shudder at the old primal crimes of brutality, but the modern method eclipses them all. Burglary by experts is no longer profitable. Such can turn their talents to incorporating blue sky stock and make infinitely more money. We must drive inquity out of business, the piracy and buccaneering methods that are now practiced. We can scarcely lay our hands on anything today that does not smell. The cleven foot is now hid in the patent leather shoe. What we need is common every day honesty that will withstand temptation, respect for law and hatred of violators, who should not be tolerated. This is the mission of the business men's association, the speaker said, as well as of each individual.

With a few brief remarks from President John B. Schafer, who excused himself from making any extended remarks, the program ended. The reception committee was composed of Alex B. Gray, C. R. Newcomer, Ed. W. Hastings, O Lance Riggs, Albert G. Stech and Carl M. Wetz. Wheeler's orchestra furnished the music.

Lenten services will be held tonight at 8 o'clock at St. Mary's Episcopal church, when an address will be made.

Robert Kennedy, of Uniontown was a visitor in Charleroi today.

RAILROAD HUNTING BUSINESS

Inaugurates Campaign to Secure Passenger Trade

CHANGES IN OFFICIALS

Determined to increase the gross passenger business Pennsylvania railroad passenger agents are busy instructing the various ticket agents as to methods to be pursued in securing business. A concerted effort will be made by the ticket agents and the passenger men generally under a systematic plan to get all the trade that is to be had in the territory the road covers. And the railroad will not be a bit averse to securing passenger business that comes from what would not really be its territory.

The campaign in this direction has been started through recent changes that were made in the passenger offices at Pittsburg and other points. The first of March O. T. Boyd, then district passenger agent of the Pittsburg district was transferred to New York city, being given there the position of district passenger agent. At the time of his departure E. Youngman, the division ticket agent had added to his duties those of district passenger agent.

Traveling passenger agents are now out seeing the ticket agents, going over their reports and helping them in their work and making suggestions as to methods of getting new business. In all places they urge particular attention to this part of the work.

ANNIVERSARY OF SOCIETY IS CELEBRATED

The Woman's Missionary Society of the Washington Avenue Presbyterian church and the Young Ladies' Circle affliated with the same denomination held a joint meeting Thursday night. The session was presided over by Mrs. F. C. Stahlman, and Mrs. G. M. Stewart led a devotional service. The affair was held as an anniversary celebration of the organization of the missionary society.

A history of the society was given by Mrs. Campbell, and a history of the Young Ladies Circle was read by Miss Nelle Ryland. Misses Genevieve Nutt and Emma Clutter sang solos, and a quartet composed of Misses Mamie Rockwell, Elma Collins, Emma Clutter and Grace Gelder rendered a selection. Miss Marie Whitehead gave a reading, "Ann of the Green Gables." "A View of Mission Fields" was the subject of a talk given by Mrs. Ellis Allman.

At the social hour a cake was shown bearing 18 lighted candles, this depicting the number of years the missionary society was old. Five charter members of the society were present. Mrs. Phillip Snow, Mrs. N. Speers, Mrs. N. W. Patton, Mrs. Clarence Allen and Mrs. R. J. Whitehead.

BIRTHDAY IS REMEMBERED

In honor of his birthday a surprise was tendered Thursday night for Alfred G. Lewis, at his home on Washington avenue. Fifteen or 20 responded to the invitations issued by Mrs. Lewis to be present. The affair was turned into an impromtu musicale with piano and vocal solos being rendered by Misses May and Ethel Barth, Mrs. A. G. Lewis and F. W. Cooper. "Stunts" were done by various others and story-telling was a feature. Mrs. Lewis, assisted by Miss Clara Cooper, served refreshments.

The bill drafted by City Sealer Murray A. Livingston of Pittsburg and County Sealer O. Evans Miksell of Washington for the government of weights and measures was introduced in the House at Harrisburg Thursday night by Representative Thomas P. Geary of Allegheny county.

The measure is the most complete ever introduced in the Legislature and would fix a state standard of weights for over 100 commodities. The title of the "state sealer" would be changed to "commissioner of weights and measures." He would receive an annual salary of $4,000 and serve for a term of four years.

A consignment of $100 worth of the new five cent piece just issued by the treasury department at Washington has been received by the First National bank and the "nickles" are being distributed. The new piece of money is of unusual design. On one side is a buffalo and the words "United States of America," "E Pluribus Unum" and "Five Cents." Local Military Organization Attended Inauguration

Members of Brigade Visited at Mt. Vernon and Other Points in Washington

Travel-stained, but not weary, members of the Third Brigade arrived home this morning at 10:14 o'clock from Washington, D. C., where they attended the inauguration this week of President Woodrow Wilson. The brigade occupied a conspicuous place in the parade that was one of the biggest features of the inauguration. Their position was in the Sixth Brigade of the Fourth Grand Division, not far from the center. Upon their arrival home the brigade had a picture taken of the company.

The brigade arrived in Washington Monday and viewed the suffragette parade. According to members of the organization this was one of the most interesting features they viewed during the whole week. General Rosalie Jones was tendered somewhat of an ovation, although according to the Charleroi soldiers, as often as not Gen. Jones and her troop of hikers were grossly insulted and hooted at. She only smiled back and took whatever jibes were sent her naturally. One of the boys said: "She made a hit with us." Some pictures of her and her army wer taken.

Tuesday of course was the parade day, and the brigade was in line of march from 1:50 o'clock until 7:30. In the evening the fireworks display at the White House drew all attention.

Wednesday was Mt. Vernon day. Then the company went to see Washington's birthplace, spending the entire day there. The beautiful old home, with its colonial furniture and the famous fireplace together with the surroundings of the old mansion proved intensely interesting sights.

Thursday the members of the brigade went sight-seeing in the national capital. Some went to the Washington monument and points in the environs of Washington and others visited the Smithonsion institution, and the capitol buildings. Among the places of interest visited was the printing department where paper money is printed. A new issue of Philippine currency was being prepared and the Charleroi boys viewed the first work of printing it.

The brigade left Washington Thursday evening at 7:50, arriving in Pittsburg at 6:33 o'clock. In Washington the weather was splendid all the time, with balmy breezes and spring-like warmth obviating the need even of wearing overcoats. The company from Charleroi included 25 members.

PUBLIC SENTIMENT.

In pleading for an awakened conscience to create such a public sentiment that violations of the law in high places will be no longer tolerated, John Marron in his address before the Business Men's Association last evening struck the keynote of civic virtue. It is public sentiment that dominates society throughout the civilized world and the people get exactly what they stand for. They alone are responsible for all the great evils in the world. They must either protest or consent.

Along with all the graft, corruption and the greed of gain in high places, which went to the extremes to the extent of jeopardizing life and health, was a general hope and expectation that this might permeate to all classes of society. The citizen in the lower walks of life sought to exploit his less fortunate neighbors just as he had been exploited himself. The gambling instinct was in the blood of the masses and each and every one sought to share in some way in the great game of getting something for nothing.

That is the reason why such lawlessness was tolerated. All of us were tainted. We either openly or secretly participated or like Paul at the stoning of Stephen, stood by and consented. An awakening conscience, however, is dispelling this iniquity, and the better instincts of the people are prevailing. It is up to the individual to create a healthy public sentiment and great progress is being made along this line.

PICKED UP IN PASSING

"There is no better test of citizenship than the quarantine regulations prescribed by the health laws of the state," said a prominent Charleroi physician, who is active in his efforts to prevent the spread of contagious and infections diseases. "We lay stress on the various reactions that follow certain medical treatments, and why should we not consider the quarantine reaction? As one eminent medical authority puts it, the quarantine reaction is diagnostic of the quality of one's citizenship.

"A positive quarantine reaction denotes good citizenship; a negative bad, or only poor citizenship and a doubtful reaction a gray quality of citizenship, of the 'didn't mean to do wrong' variety.

"It is in the willingness or reluctance to have one's personal freedom curtailed for the benefit of the community that this specific reaction lies. Many people regard the health department as their enemy, rather than friend. They are angry enough if their own children contract measles, scarlet fever or any other disease through the carelessness of their neighbors, yet they will evade the regulations of the quarantine themselves. Those people would not willfully murder a neighbor's child or give it poisoned fruit or candy, but they deliberately help in thes pread of contagion that may result in suffering or death.

"Most people are unwilling to consider oneself 'unclean,' and for that reason evade the quarantine regulations when it applies to them personally. The positive quarantine reaction is the good citizen who [illegible] for the welfare of his neighbors as well as himself, and obeys the quarantine regulations scrupuously. If we had more of these we would not have so many cases of contageous and infectious diseases as at present prevails.

"Of course there are those who are ignorant, but those who know better and are still careless and indifferent are so numerous as to make one wonder at the lack of good citizenship displayed."

Not knowing the name of the man she wanted to find or even the number of his office, a woman opened the door of a room where a group of men were engaged in conference. They gazed at her in blank astonishment, according to a Fallowfield avenue woman who tells the story.

"What may I do for you," one politely inquired." She answered:

"I'm lookin' vor ein man. I don' know what hiss name iss, und I don' know vere iss he, but who iss dis?"

AMONG THE THEATRES

THE COYLE—CHARLEROI

With the great historical drama in four parts, "The Knights of Rhodes," the Coyle Theatre opened up another week of motion picture presentations most auspiciously. This great film which was one of the best productions of the Ambrosia company of Turin, Italy, gave a comprehensive exposition of the Moslem invasion that threatened at one time to overwhelm Europe. It was when Soliman, Sultan or Turkey in 1522 decided to capture the Island of Rhodes, which was valiantly defended by some of the highest nobles of Europe, that the onward rush of Moslemism was checked A thrilling romance was intrewoven in the historical text, which made the drama most intensely interesting. All the other films were up to the usual high standing of the Coyle's repertoire and a three reel Bison. "On the Frontier," was a sensational picture of how the early settlers and the small border army struggled for existence. For next Monday the Coyle presents "Saved in Mid-Air," a dramatic portrayal of love and jealousy in three reels. This is a story of intrigue where some daring schemes are worked to get important papers from the possession of a young man, who is rescued by a brave girl from a perilious position on a rope stretched at a dizzy height. There is a good week end bill in the repertoire.

THE PALACE—CHARLEROI

Amusing in the extreme was the comedy skit, "Breaking Into Vaudeville" presented by the Empire Trio at the Palace Theatre Thursday night. This trio is the headliner in the Palace vaudeville the latter part of this week. It is only necessary to state that the trio played at the Grand Theatre in Pittsburg a short time ago, to give evidence that they are good. Their playlet had as its plot what the title would indicate. One was made up straight, another as a negro and another as an Irishman. The comicalities incidental to the presumed experiences of ambitious stage-struck folks put the audience in an uproar. The Davenport Sisters had a sketch of merit. This sister team, composed of two beautiful young women, that by the way are as pretty off the stage as they are on and as vivacious, entertained with songs, dances and delicious comedy. Their act won for them deserved plaudits. E. H. Jerome is the "single." His "stunt" is of an acrobatic comedy nature. There is somewhat of a departure from the ordinary in Jerome's act, which makes it more appreciable. There were the usual photoplay productions shown that proved the usual delightful feature. The vaudeville runs three days the latter part of each week and pictures every night.

THE STAR—CHARLEROI

If any person doubts the claim of the Star Theatre that it is good place to go for a good show every day all they have to do is to glance at the repertoire of the week, which was usually strong in features. Monday started off with a two reel Kay Bee, "The Paymaster's Son,' one of the western dramas that is so popular with those who in spite of mediocre environments still have a tinge of adventure in their blood. "Lost Memory" in three reels was one of the big features of the week and this was greatly appreciated by the Star patrons. "Calamaty Ann's Inheritance," "Evidence of the Film," and "A Night of Terror" were some of the other pictures that were usually attractive. "A Blue Grass Romance," a Broncho Bill picture was one of the week end attractons with an usually good bill for Saturday. Manager Cowan has an exceptionally fine service now, which improves with each week. He has some strong features booked for next week.
